

Moray House Trust mourns the passing of Andaiye, our first Chair of Trustees. She guided a fledgling institution along its first steps even as her health declined. She performed this office with grace, dignity and that peculiar blend of common sense, intellect and humour that set her apart.

There will be many tributes from those who knew her and understood the breadth and depth of her role as the conscience of this young nation.

A propos the photo, as Howard Zinn wrote, "civil disobedience is not our problem. Our problem is civil obedience. Our problem is that people all over the world have obeyed the dictates of leaders...Our problem is that people are obedient all over the world in the face of poverty and starvation and stupidity, and war, and cruelty."

[Image: Andaiye holding the placard, 'This is what civil disobedience looks like.']

